COURSE DESCRIPTION

This is a SENIOR undergraduate drawing course; therefore students are expected to have established a strong direction for their work. The intent of this course is to explore technical, conceptual, methodological, and formal possibilities in response to the students existing tendencies. Students are expected to accept the challenges of developing multiple works simultaneously, which could be considered as variations on the form. Additionally, students will be encouraged to develop a countermovement of work, which will provide new perspective regarding what issues the student accepts as part of their aesthetic. This course is an individualistic developmental endeavor in which students must learn to follow the flow of a drawings progress, to be responsive to the idiosyncratic opportunities of each work, and to continue to inspect the paradigm in which the students works.

Exploration of technical capabilities, expansion of diversity of materials, the creation of concepts, ideas, directions, and engagement in the process is expected of every student. Student's progress, personal vision, work ethic, and individual effort are required. Work hard, think broad, and always stay "present" with each drawing. Trust discovery, innovation, and work.

Student should consider their work as cumulative, ensuring a progressive approach, and including ever - expanding degrees of sophistication, complexity, and experimentation. Students are expected to push themselves to become more physically facile, more responsive to formal and conceptual needs within the work, and to become broader, more informed contemporary artists. We expect to make a hybrid work that has never been seen.

EACH CLASS PERIOD STUDENTS WILL BE EXPECTED TO DEFINE THE STATUS OF THEIR CURRENT WORK, TO DEVELOP QUESTIONS FOR THE PROFESSOR CONCERNING THE WORK, AND BE OPEN AND RESPONSIVE TO QUESTIONS, COMMENTS, AND INSTRUCTION OF THE PROFESSOR.

COURSE EXPECTATIONS

The number of required works depends greatly on the complexity and scale of each "cycle" of work. Students are required to produce multiple related works simultaneously. No fewer than three related works should be in process at all times.

Students will have the opportunity for individual critiques by the professor, as well as scheduled group critiques. Please take advantage of conversation outside of the scheduled studio time, by communicating with the professor and your peers. Schedule an individual discussion, email ideas/questions, call. Benefit from your artistic community by challenging yourself and your colleagues to push one another to improve.

There will be a Mid- Term, and a Final Review requirement. Three works are due at each critique, but there should be other drawings that are produced in concert with the best three.

The professor will define specific conceptual, technical, formal, and methodological issues, through conversation with each individual that should be addressed. Students will present completed works during regularly scheduled critiques. Participation in critiques, showing completed works on time, and active discussion is required of every student.
