Seminar Description

This seminar will examine the influence of media on culture and consciousness. Such media could include traditional ones such as television, radio, print, and writing as well as “new” ones such as email, instant messaging, blogs, Websites, and the like. The focus of the seminar is on the exploration of how media technologies shape how people and cultures think, value, and feel.

Seminar Framework

Microscopic orientation to primary figures in media ecology

Telescopic orientation to media environments and their role in shaping culture and consciousness

“Probes” into New Media

Gestalt analysis of New Media/Research Paper on Media Ecology

Student Learning Objectives

The objectives of this course as they correspond to the objectives of the graduate program are as follows:

1. Students will be able to conduct original research using a method appropriate to the research question.
2. Students will be able to explain communication from a variety of communication theoretical perspectives.

ASSIGNMENTS & GRADING

(Guidelines for each of the assignments will be provided at the appropriate time.)

The primary difference between graduate and undergraduate expectations are that graduate students will write a substantial research paper while undergraduate students will write a paper that synthesizes their media probes; grad students and undergrad students read and report on different books, and final exams will be different.

Presentation: Alone Together	10%
Presentation of Major Media Ecologist	20%
Media Probe (1)	10%

Media Environment Analysis and Presentation (Probe 2)	10%
Research Paper	20%
Final Exam (Essay)	20%
TOTAL:	100%

The category of “Participation” has not been given a percentage value. This is because active engagement in class proceedings is expected both in graded assignments and in preparations and discussions. It refers to class presentations, such as chapter reports, discussion in class, and attendance. Failure to participate actively in class proceedings and absences can result in the class grade being lowered, up to the point of failing the class, even if the student’s score were passing on all graded assignments.

For each graded assignment, students will receive an A, B, C, D, or F. Each of these letter grades corresponds with a number value: an A carries a numeric value of 4, a B is worth 3, C is worth 2, D is worth 1, and F is worth 0. To calculate your grade, multiply 4, 3, 2, 1, or 0 that corresponds with your letter grade by the percentage value (above) of a given exercise. For example, if you receive a B for the “Presentation of Major Media Ecologist,” you would multiply 3—which corresponds with a B—by 20% and you would get a .60 for that assignment. At the end of the semester, to calculate your final grade, you would add each of the scores and divide by 100. Final grades will be awarded as follows:

Numeric Value of Grades
A	= 4
B	= 3
C	= 2
D	= 1
F	= 0

If your grade falls between two numbers (e.g., between a 3 and a 2), you will receive the grade corresponding with the lower number (in this case, a C, corresponding with 2) since technically you will not have achieved a B (a 3.0)

Seminar Policies and Procedures

Attendance: Students are permitted to miss three class hours throughout the semester without any consequence to their semester grade. Beyond 3, except under the most extenuating circumstance at the instructor’s discretion, the student’s seminar grade will be affected. Proof for excused absences must be documented within two weeks of the absence and must clearly state that the emergency required that the student miss the course on the date and at the time of the absence. Participation in Reading Reflections also counts as attendance.

Course Format

This course consists of lectures, essays (“probes”), discussion, individual presentations, and a final paper.

Course Assignments (Expectations of particular assignments will be provided at the announcement of each respective assignment).

Academic Integrity: Honesty and integrity are essential values in interpersonal and intercultural understanding, and you are expected to maintain these same ethical standards in all of your work in this class. Any betrayal of these values violates a basic expectation of the student's performance in this class. Therefore, a student engaging in ANY form of academic dishonesty shall receive an automatic F at minimum for that assignment or examination. For a statement of the University of Texas at Tyler's policy on academic integrity, see this link to the pertinent section of the Undergraduate/Graduate Catalog: <http://uttyler.cmsiq.com/2015-2016/Catalog/Student-Affairs/Student-Responsibilities>

Please see the brief video on the UT-Tyler Honor Code: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=nmKsbYwtrco>

Regarding Late Work: I DO NOT ACCEPT UNEXCUSED LATE WORK. Since one of the primary objectives expressed in the University's mission statement is that students "will act with honesty and integrity," I will enforce rigorous standards of honesty and personal responsibility. Work is considered late if work is not presented on the date assigned. Unexcused work receives a "O." Any exceptions to this policy—which would be very rare!—would be at my discretion; in this case, the student:

- must submit to me a written petition requesting that his/her absence be excused
- must show official documentation verifying the basis for absence
- must be prepared to present the missed work at the very first opportunity I make available after the student's return
- must provide appropriate documentation that his/her failure to complete the assignment on the assigned date was unavoidable
- may be penalized for failure to present work as assigned.

If you know in advance that you will not be able to be present on a particular date on which work has been assigned, please let me know. I will try to schedule your assignment accordingly.

Use of Cell Phone or Other Electronic Devices: Any use of cell telephones, pagers, Ipads, and all other electronic devices during class time is forbidden. It is the students' responsibility to make sure that their telephones or pagers do not ring, vibrate, or otherwise create the possibility of a class disruption. A student whose telephone rings, vibrates, or otherwise creates a distraction during class will be counted as absent for that class period. A student using any electronic device during testing without prior approval shall be subject to the policy on academic integrity.

Laptops or Ipads. The use of laptops in class for any purpose other than taking notes (e.g., instant-messaging, emailing, surfing the Internet, playing Solitaire) is strictly forbidden. Students caught engaging in any forbidden laptop activity shall be counted as absent that day.

Audio/Video Recording of class lectures is prohibited without prior approval. However, on occasion the instructor may arrange recording for instructional purposes.

Oral and Written Work: Assignments may have an oral and/or written components. Especially since this is a communication class, grading of oral and written work will consider quality and thoroughness of analysis, style, adherence to format, and proper mechanics (grammar, spelling, organization, clarity, cohesiveness). All work submitted to me should be typed and double-spaced. All work should be stapled (Please! NO PLASTIC REPORT COVERS WITH SPINES, NO DOG EARS, NO FOLDED CORNERS, AND NO PAPER CLIPS! PLEASE STAPLE PAGES!) The quality of both your written and oral work will figure into your grade for the assignment.

Reading Assignments: In class lectures, I will ordinarily highlight portions—not the entirety—of the chapters assigned in your readings. However, you are responsible for the entire contents of all chapters and may be tested on any portions of those readings.

“Outside” Participation: Because much of what this course teaches is learned in personal reflection and application, some activities or preparation for in-class activities take place outside of class.
