Faculty Learning Community on Global Awareness and Diversity

What is Global Awareness & Diversity (and why should UT-Tyler Care)?

- The FLC relies on an open-ended definition of diversity as key to its raison d'être, one that includes racial/ethnic, gender, cultural, socioeconomic, and age-based, and other forms of diversity

- The FLC on Global Awareness and Diversity emphasizes its uniqueness as an organization that is faculty- and staff-centered while maintaining a vision of how they could contribute to student life, university life, and the community and representing faculty and staff voices in broader conversations

- The FLC is intent on building bridges and contributing to and leading conversations between colleges, departments, OIP, OGS and other offices, as well as in the broader University community in Tyler, Palestine, Longview, and Houston

Global Awareness and Diversity at UT Tyler

- Participants on the FLC have begun work on addressing and discussing Global Awareness and Diversity on campus in three areas:
  - Global Awareness and Diversity in the Classroom
  - Faculty and Staff Development in Global Awareness and Diversity
  - Global Awareness and Diversity at UT-Tyler and Beyond
