

"Words are sacred. They deserve respect. If you get the right ones, in the right order, you can nudge the world a little."

-TOM STOPPARD

Essential Learnings

If you ask anyone what they believe is the most important social problem facing the United States, there would be many different answers the economy, immigration, healthcare, unemployment, etc. Most would agree that some or all of these are social problems, but which is more important and how to solve it?

Social Problems, after all, affect each and every one of us, directly or indirectly. And everyone, whether a leader in business or politics, a stay-at-home parent, or a student, can become more mindful of how his or her actions (or inactions) perpetuate or alleviate social problems.

We hope this course not only informs, but also inspires, planting seeds of social awareness that will grow no matter what academic, occupational, and life path students choose.

Each student brings to this course a unique identity and a distinct perspective shaped by a unique set of experiences.

Contemporary Social Problems

SOCI 1306
Fall 2021

* Asynchronous online course

An introduction to the study of current problems that influence the well being of individuals, institutions, and societies. A goal is to provide students with a perspective to evaluate conflicts in values, individual deviance, family instability, aging, environment, terrorism, drug abuse, and other contemporary issues. Possible solutions based on sociological theory are explored..

INSTRUCTOR:

Dr. Aleksandra V. Cregler

Office: CAS 144
acregler@uttyler.edu

Course Objectives

In addition to the goal that "you will be thoroughly versed in the topics of sociology", there are a number of more specific learning outcomes the successful student will experience in this course:

- ✓ Students will demonstrate social awareness, knowledge, and skills in written, verbal, and behavioral activities.
- ✓ Students will be able to make rational and measured decisions in the interest of fairness, whereas a synthesis of group and independent projects provide students with skills of teamwork, self-dependence and autonomy.
- ✓ Students will be prepared for a lifetime of change by developing appreciation of diversity, love of learning, writing and study skills, and knowledge base about human behavior, social organization, culture, and social change.

Evaluation

- Midterm Exam
- Final Exam
- Presentation
- Follow-up Discussion

Midterm Exam	35%
Final Exam	35%
Presentation	20%
Follow-up Discussion	10%

EXAMS: combination of 2-3 short essay questions and 5-10 multiple choice questions. This will give me a perspective of how far and wide I can facilitate, orient and guide you with the knowledge, ideas, abilities, skills and attitudes that I tend to build up in order to achieve my teaching objectives, and to make you, as students, responsive to the changing needs of the society. Essays, however, can reveal the depth and breadth of students' knowledge, as well as erroneous conclusions that are drawn. This will allow you to practice your writing and argument development. Each exam is worth 35% of your final grade.

PRESENTATION: Each student will be required to prepare a Research Project for a topic of his/her interest. Students will have complete academic freedom in choosing the format and the topic. This is with the intent to extend yourselves to yield the benefits of research and presentation. The complexities of research and presenting can be intimidating at first, but students will not be without help. By engaging in research firsthand, students find it easier to understand the rationale underlying others' research. For example, only after forming one's own hypotheses does one truly understand the nuances of research designs and better conceptualize course material. Exposure to an area of research undoubtedly also helps students explore career fields.

FOLLOW-UP DISCUSSION: 10-15min interactive dialogue between the student and the instructor. During this time, we will review and discuss the student's performance. This interaction provides an opportunity to reach levels of understanding that may be difficult to reach with only multiple-choice questions and written exams. This also help validate the originality of student's work and removes some of the strategic demands of the exam. Some students who do not do well on written tests are able to show what they know and gain a sense of positive achievement during this discussion.

Evaluation Criteria

A: An "A" reflects a level of performance which is "distinctly superior" to that shown by the majority of students in a course. "A students" show a level of commitment to scholarship equal to that shown by the instructor; they often research a topic beyond that required by any assignment. "A students" are consistently prepared for every class period, keenly engaged in the conduct of the course, and always seeking implications to the content of a course beyond that offered by the text or by a lecture example. They are usually the first to ask questions in class and their comments always demonstrate more than a superficial appreciation of a topic. Usually, "A students" have a unique aptitude for the material that they study and have mature time management skills such that they never cram for exams or need additional time to complete an assignment. Because they carry these skills and attitudes with them to other courses, "A students" usually earn the top grades in other courses. Needless-to-say, "A students" always earn the highest grades on examinations and papers. Because of the high standards demanded of these students, "A's" are earned by a small fraction of course participants, usually as few as 15% of the students enrolled in a course.

B: A "B" is the result of consistently above average academic performance. A "B" may in fact reflect "superior" achievement but is not quite the equal of the very best in a class. "B students" may earn the highest grade on several exams or papers, but do not do so consistently as other demands, including other courses, may compete with their scholarship to produce inconsistent performance. "B" grades are typically earned by 25-40% of a class at this University.

C: "C" results from consistently average work, or from highly variable work (periods of inferior achievement in addition to superior achievement). "C" grades often result from mere memorization of course content without an appreciation of the implications of the subject matter or an unwillingness to examine the subject in depth. Consequently, "C students" may be able to recognize a term or concept but may not be able to explain it or place it in its proper context. "C's" are often the result when individuals cannot effectively manage the demands of their day such that they are driven from deadline to deadline. In addition, "C students" may give infrequent, but clear indication that they are disinterested in class discussions, lectures or even in the discipline itself. "C's" are earned by approximately 30% of a class.

Evaluation Criteria

D: A "D" reflects consistently below average work. While the "D student" may have performed passing work, usually she or he has never risen above average performance and may show significant periods of unacceptable performance. "D's" are the product of many factors, by other factors and activities for the student's time and attention. "D's" might result from factors such as illness or family emergencies that are beyond the student's ability to control; However, "D students" usually seek help only after irreparable damage has been done to their overall performance in a class. "D's" are earned by approximately 10-15% of students in a course.

F: "F's" reflect failure to learn an appreciable amount in a course. There are many causes of this failure including poor preparation, lack of maturity, low scholastic aptitude, etc. "F's" result when an instructor cannot, in conscience, certify that a student shows any mastery of a subject beyond that level demonstrated by an uninformed lay person. Because of our liberal course withdrawal policies, "F's" are usually rare, but at least two or three individuals (4-6% of a course) receive one because their disinterest is so profound that they do not know or care about their impending failure until weeks following the last date to withdraw from a course.

I: If a student, because of extenuating circumstances, is unable to complete all of the requirements for a course by the end of the semester, then the instructor may recommend an incomplete "I" for the course. The student and the instructor must submit an Incomplete Form detailing the work required and the time by which the work must be completed to their respective department chair or college dean for approval. The time limit established must not exceed one year for both undergraduate and graduate students.

A	90-100
B	80-89
C	70-79
D	60-69
F	59 and below
I	incomplete

 Grades will be based on a total number of points earned. More in-depth assignments will be worth more points. At the end of the course, each student is assigned a final grade, according to the grading scale proposed.*

University Policies:

Grade Replacement/Forgiveness and Census Date Policies:

Students repeating a course for grade forgiveness (grade replacement) must file a Grade Replacement Contract with the Enrollment Services Center (ADM 230) on or before the Census Date of the semester in which the course will be repeated.) Grade Replacement Contracts are available in the Enrollment Services Center or at <http://www.uttyler.edu/registrar>. Each semester's Census Date can be found on the Contract itself, on the Academic Calendar, or in the information pamphlets published each semester by the Office of the Registrar.

Failure to file a Grade Replacement Contract will result in both the original and repeated grade being used to calculate your overall grade point average. Undergraduates are eligible to exercise grade replacement for only three course repeats during their career at UT Tyler; graduates are eligible for two grade replacements. Full policy details are printed on each Grade Replacement Contract.

The Census Date is the deadline for many forms and enrollment actions of which students need to be aware. These include:

- Submitting Grade Replacement Contracts, Transient Forms, requests to withhold directory information, approvals for taking courses as Audit, Pass/Fail or Credit/No Credit.
- Receiving 100% refunds for partial withdrawals. (There is no refund for these after the Census Date)
- Schedule adjustments (section changes, adding a new class, dropping without a "W" grade)
- Being reinstated or re-enrolled in classes after being dropped for non-payment
- Completing the process for tuition exemptions or waivers through Financial Aid

University Policies:

State-Mandated Course Drop Policy:

Texas law prohibits a student who began college for the first time in Fall 2007 or thereafter from dropping more than six courses during their entire undergraduate career. This includes courses dropped at another 2-year or 4-year Texas public college or university. For purposes of this rule, a dropped course is any course that is dropped after the census date (See Academic Calendar for the specific date).

Exceptions to the 6-drop rule may be found in the catalog. Petitions for exemptions must be submitted to the Enrollment Services Center and must be accompanied by documentation of the extenuating circumstance. Please contact the Enrollment Services Center if you have any questions.
