

4.14 NCLEX-RN

(Revised 6/12/2022)

NCLEX-RN, which stands for National Council Licensure Examination for Registered Nurses, refers to the standardized test registered nursing candidates must pass in order to become a registered nurse (RN).

During the final semester of study, undergraduate students are informed of each step in the NCLEX-RN® application process. The process must be completed by specified dates. The student must follow the directions in a timely manner. Failure to follow all directions and respond appropriately could prevent the graduate from meeting the requirements to take the NCLEX-RN®. The student must contact the Board of Nursing to correct any errors made in the application (e.g., date of graduation or school code).
