

Marketable Skills: Health Sciences BS

Skill	General and Health Sciences-Specific Applications	How the Skill is Delivered
Speaking/Presenting (Verbal Communication)	Learn to communicate with patients, clients, students, or the general public about health promotion and personal and community health and wellness.	Presentation assignments in multiple courses.
Writing and Interpreting Reports (Written Communication)	Learn to write effectively to communicate information about health promotion and personal and community health and wellness.	Written assignments in multiple courses and labs.
Human Relations	Learn to interact effectively with others to promote personal and community health and wellness.	Group assignments and presentations in multiple courses, especially HECC 4308.
Educating Individuals, Groups, or Community	Learn to effectively teach others regarding personal and community health and wellness.	Group assignments and presentations in multiple courses.
Data Entry, Analyses, and Interpretation	Learn to input and analyze health-related data, and interpret results related to health, wellness, health promotion, and health education.	HECC 4333
Media Planning and Design	Learn to plan, design and produce media about health promotion and personal and community health and wellness.	ALHS 4304 and other courses
Social Network Communications	Learn to use social networks to communicate information about health promotion and personal and community health and wellness.	Assignments in multiple courses
Health Program Planning and Design	Develop skills in needs assessment, planning, implementation, and evaluation of programs designed to promote health and prevent disease in human populations.	ALHS 4304