Course Description

This course is designed to help students further their own analytical skills while also employing the interdisciplinary methods common not only to a liberal arts education, but increasingly, to issues in the professional world today. This honors course combines the genres of graphic novels, films, and history to understand the impact of history on cultural production and cultural production on history. In the process, students will use a variety of collaborative, written, oral, and visual methods of learning and instructing as they simultaneously develop a more nuanced understanding of the relations between fields both in an academic setting and in their everyday lives.

Objectives

This course focuses on the period of the 1940s-1990s to help students consider media, history, and the world around them from a multidisciplinary standpoint that allows them to engage the past and the present from a critical perspective appropriate to an Honors Program. In the course of the semester, students will

- Develop critical thinking skills that reflect an ability to analyze, synthesize, and evaluate information while improving creative thinking, innovation, and inquiry.
- Develop communication skills that reflect the ability to develop, interpret, and express their own ideas through written, oral, and visual communication.
- Develop a sense of social responsibility that reflects intercultural competence, knowledge of civic responsibility, and the ability to engage effectively in local, regional, national, and global communities.
- Develop a sense of personal responsibility that the ability to connect individual choices, actions, and consequences to ethical decision-making.

More specifically, in accordance with the Student Learning Outcomes as they pertain to the material in this course, this course will teach students to:

- Identify key events, people, intellectual currents, and lived experiences in the 20th century in both fictionalized and non-fictional/biographical forms from a global perspective.
- Trace the cultural, social, and political developments and events of the 20th century through graphic novels and film.
- Trace the cultural, social, and political transformations in ideology and global struggles in the 20th century in the global arena.
- Develop an understanding of different forms of visual rhetoric and their impact in our understanding of events.
- Develop a broader understanding of the diversity of visual, discursive, and technical forms of expression in print media and film.
- Assess the impact of the historical developments of the 20th century on societies and lives around the world.
- Assess the role of individuals in social changes and processes in local, national, and international settings.
- Evaluate the impact of culture, gender, race, and politics in a global setting.

Course Content

This course will use a mixed-format for the classroom, one that integrates lecture, group discussions, and film viewings to allow students to simultaneously acquire foundational knowledge while developing broader analytical and communication skills. The course is divided into five units that cover transformations in history, ideology, and conflict in the 20th century between 1933 and the 1980s. In this undertaking, students will read five (5) graphic novels throughout the semester. The assigned readings are:

- Abadzis, Nick. Laika. New York: First Second Publishing, 2007. (ISBN: 978-1596431010)
- Gendry-Kim, Keum Suk. Grass. Montreal: Drawn and Quarterly, 2019. (ISBN: 978-1770463622)
- Kirk, Andrew G., and Kristian Purcell. Doom Towns: The People and Landscapes of Atomic Testing A Graphic History. Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2016. (ISBN: 978-0199375905)
- Lewis, John, Andrew Aydin, L. Fury, and Nate Powell. Run: Book One.: Harry N. Abrams, 2021. (ISBN: 978-1419730696)
- Sacco, Joe. Safe Area Gorazde: The War in Eastern Bosnia, 1992-1995. Seattle: Fantagraphics, 2002. (ISBN: 978-1560974703)

To add to our ability to analyze, learn from, and compare and contrast different historical events and the accounts of them, these graphic novels will be accompanied by films that will be shown in class. Students will be expected to blend the foundational knowledge acquired in lectures with their own analysis of the graphic novels and the films to provide an integrative and participatory understanding of art, media, and history in the 20th century. The films that will accompany each reading are:

Letters from Iwo Jima [accompanying Grass]
The Atomic Café [accompanying Doom Towns]
First Man [accompanying Laika]
Black Power Mixtape [accompanying Run]
Slacker [accompanying Safe Area Gorazde]

Assignments

This course is made up of three primary arenas of grading: Attendance and Participation/Discussion; short (2 double-spaced pages maximum) reflections for each "unit;" and a 3500-4000 word analytical paper on a topic of the student's choice that incorporates graphic novels and/or films from outside of class.

Attendance & Participation (35% of Your Grade)

Learning is a process that takes place over days, weeks, months, and years in a variety of ways. One of the most rewarding parts of the learning process is the student's direct engagement with learning via classroom interactions, open lectures, and discussions. Thus, students are expected not only to attend class, but to actively engage in and lead discussions. Given the key role that discussion, lecture, and film viewings will play in our course, it is imperative that you participate in your own educational experience; to choose not to do so is to undertake the more tedious parts of learning without enjoying its rewarding parts.

Therefore, student attendance and participation are required, and make up 30% of the Final Grade. One absence will result in no penalty. Two (2) absences will result in a drop of a letter grade. Three (3) absences will result in a drop of 2 letter grades. Four (4) absences or more will result in a zero (0) for this portion of the student's grade. In the event that student engagement is not adequate, or it becomes apparent that students are not completing the assignments, quizzes will become a feature of the course.

Please Note: failure to attend a part of an individual class for other courses or commitments will result in an absence for that class.

Unit Reflections (15% of Your Grade)

At the end of each unit, students will submit a reflection (12-point font, double-spaced, 2 page maximum) on the themes of the unit's graphic novel and film, and what they have learned from the lectures, graphic novel, and film for that unit. Further instructions and guidance will be provided in class. There will be five of these reflections, and students must do three of the five of their choice. Each of these reflections will be worth 5%, for a total of 15%.

Please Note: these papers cannot exceed 2 double-spaced pages. Any paper that goes over this length will not be read past page 2 and will be evaluated as if it were incomplete.

Paper (50% of Your Grade)

There will be a research paper due by Saturday, April 27 by 9:00AM. In terms of length, this paper must be 3500-4000 words long. The paper should explore a blend of graphic novels, films, and/or history. This allows you the greatest flexibility to find a topic and materials that interest you. It can be over a single graphic novel/film pairing from outside the course materials that analyzes the two in comparison with one another and in their historical context; a comparison of multiple graphic novels/films; or a historical research paper that relies on graphic novels. Your paper cannot be strictly over one of the graphic novels/films that have been selected for the class; if you are doing a broader comparison of more than 2 graphic novels/films, you may bring in one of the graphic novels/films from the course, but they should not be the main focus of your paper. I am open to ideas and concepts for papers, and you are free to pick a topic/graphic novel(s)/film(s) that most fit your own interests as it pertains to the course. A list of historical graphic novels is also available below; you are not required to draw from it, but it may be useful in helping you refine your topic.

The final papers should be written in the standard format – 12 point font, one-inch margins, and double-spaced. The final submitted version of your paper will be worth 50% of the student's Final Grade.

Grades

Below is the breakdown of how grades will be determined, based on a standard grading scale (A, 90-100; B, 80-89; C, 70-79; D, 60-69; F, 59 or lower):

TOTAL	100%
Final Research Paper (3500-4000 words)	50%
Unit reflections (3 of 5 x 5% each)	15%
Attendance and Participation	35%

A Note on Films

Given the nature and subject matter of this course, as well as the cultural context in which films were made, some films have subject matter that may feature anachronistic terminologies, vulgar language, and/or scenes of violence, nudity, or overt sexual situations. Such films were not selected for controversial reasons or with the intention of causing discomfort, but because the subject-matter taps into important elements and components of questions over the reach and limits of human rights in cultures, societies, and politics around the world. It is understood that, by agreeing to attend this class, you, as adults, are aware of the films and their subject matter, and view them accordingly, with the understanding that the films were picked for the insights they offer into the course content, and not for any reasons of controversy or provocation. If you have concerns over the films, please do not hesitate to reach out to me to discuss those concerns.

Student Standards of Academic Conduct

Disciplinary proceedings may be initiated against any student who engages in scholastic dishonesty, including, but not limited to, cheating, plagiarism, collusion, the submission for credit of any work or materials that are attributable in whole or in part to another person, taking an examination for another person, any act designed to give unfair advantage to a student or the attempt to commit such acts.

- i. "Cheating" includes, but is not limited to:
 - o copying from another student's test paper;
 - o using, during a test, materials not authorized by the person giving the test;
 - failure to comply with instructions given by the person administering the test;
 - possession during a test of materials which are not authorized by the person giving the test, such as class notes or specifically designed "crib notes". The presence of textbooks constitutes a violation if they have been specifically prohibited by the person administering the test;
 - using, buying, stealing, transporting, or soliciting in whole or part the contents of an unadministered test, test key, homework solution, or computer program;
 - collaborating with or seeking aid from another student during a test or other assignment without authority;
 - o discussing the contents of an examination with another student who will take the examination;
 - divulging the contents of an examination, for the purpose of preserving questions for use by another, when the instructors has designated that the examination is not to be removed from the examination room or not to be returned or to be kept by the student;
 - o substituting for another person, or permitting another person to substitute for oneself to take a course, a test, or any course-related assignment;
 - paying or offering money or other valuable thing to, or coercing another person to obtain an unadministered test, test key, homework solution, or computer program or information about an unadministered test, test key, home solution or computer program;
 - o falsifying research data, laboratory reports, and/or other academic work offered for credit;
 - taking, keeping, misplacing, or damaging the property of The University of Texas at Tyler, or of another, if the student knows or reasonably should know that an unfair academic advantage would be gained by such conduct; and

- o misrepresenting facts, including providing false grades or resumes, for the purpose of obtaining an academic or financial benefit or injuring another student academically or financially.
- ii. "Plagiarism" includes, but is not limited to, the appropriation, buying, receiving as a gift, or obtaining by any means human or "artificial intelligence"/chatbot generated another's work and the submission of it as one's own academic work offered for credit.
- iii. "Collusion" includes, but is not limited to, the unauthorized collaboration with another person in preparing academic assignments offered for credit or collaboration with another person to commit a violation of any section of the rules on scholastic dishonesty.
- iv. All written work that is submitted will be subject to review by plagiarism software.
