Learn How to Become a Nurse?

The University of Texas at Tyler Longview University Center will host “Nursing 101” from 6 - 8 p.m. on Tuesday, October 14.

“The event is designed to inform the community about the nursing profession and the numerous career options available to qualified nurses,” said Dr. Helene Hakim, director of Longview campus nursing program.

Representatives from UT Tyler will be available to discuss various nursing degree programs such as the bachelor’s of science in nursing (BSN), master’s of science in nursing (MSN) with specialties in education, administration or family nurse practitioner. Information will also be available concerning the admissions process and financial aid.

The Nursing 101 program is open to the public and will be a come and go event. It will be held at the UT Tyler Longview University Center, which is located at 3201 N. Eastman Rd, Longview, TX 75605.
